

Monday, July 2, 2018

Bell & Gossett Brings Independence to Pump Selection with ESP-Systemwize

Monday Morning Minutes | by Norm Hall, July 2, 2018

On July 2, 1776, General Howe landed his fleet in New York and unloaded the first wave of 19,000 English and Hessian soldiers. Howe was determined to show the American colonists they should blindly accept the edicts given to them. Meanwhile, the Continental Congress was drafting a Declaration to say that the people wanted a voice in decisions. We celebrate that independence this Fourth of July week.

Photo by Radiant Shutters on Flickr

ESP-Systemwize Pump Selection Program

This short R. L. Deppmann Monday Morning Minutes again features the ESP-Systemwize pump selection program from Bell & Gossett. Many pump companies offer selection programs that lead you to the type of pump and model they want to sell, proclaiming an edict, and totally ignoring your Freedom of Choice. B&G offers a program where you, as the engineer or designer, are offered the right to choose the pump you want. Talk about independence!

The R. L. Deppmann Company Monday Morning Minutes titled “Bell & Gossett ESP-Systemwize Pump Selections” article introduced this valuable tool for the industry. B&G has followed up with two short and informative YouTube videos which we have attached in our most recent MMM. Enjoy!

Bell & Gossett on YouTube

SP-Systemwize: Introduction & Selecting a New System

ESP-Systemwize Pump Selection: How To Pick A Pump

Next week, we continue our regular R. L. Deppmann Monday Morning Minutes blog.